NENA®

Dear Public Safety Professionals,

Georgia APCO and NENA have joined together to sponsor the Georgia Emergency Communications Conference, a joint training event and vendor exhibition, in 2009 and 2010 in Athens, Georgia. This initiative is in response concerns about the number of conferences conducted each year. Our goal is to provide the opportunity for our members to network with their colleagues at a single dynamic event each year. In the past, both organizations have held separate training events (sometimes four a year) around the state, taxing the resources of both our public safety members and our corporate supporters. By combining our efforts, we can provide a higher level of quality and service to all our constituents, as well as attracting a more diverse attendance, from line-level operators to Directors, Commissioners, Sheriffs and everyone in between. We would like to invite you to register for the Georgia Emergency Communications Conference and Exhibition to be held the week of September 14-17, 2009.

The tremendous joint cooperation and effort by members of both organizations will allow more public safety professionals, especially line-level personnel, to take advantage of world-class training and networking opportunities. On Monday, September 14, we are proud to present a day-long presentation from the Center for Missing and Exploited Children. This is a program that is always in high demand, and normally offered on a first-come, first-served basis at the Center's headquarters in suburban Washington, D.C.. We have also confirmed Jim Sayih, of 911 Fitness for a day-long session on fitness and exercise for public safety personnel. Jim was recently recognized by the President's Council on Physical Fitness. Our committee is reaching out to more well-known figures from across the country, in an effort to bring you the best, most enriching and inspiring presentations possible. As soon as these speakers are confirmed, we will be sure to let you know.

Public Safety Vendors from around the country will display their newest and most up-to-date equipment at our Vendor Exhibition on Tuesday. We are happy to offer a free pass to the Vendor Exhibit to anyone with decision-making authority who wishes to attend. Please invite your Sheriff's, Chiefs, Commissioners, City Managers, Mayors, and anyone else who has an interest in the equipment and technology you need to make your Communications Center as effective, efficient, and responsive to your agencies customers as possible. Our exhibitors can help provide first-hand information about their products to the people who control your budget.

Enclosed in this packet is a wealth of information on the conference and vendor show. Our host facility, the Classic Center has an outstanding facility that will allow us to provide you with an outstanding conference and great vendor exhibit. Our plans will bring timely and valuable information to attendees from all levels and disciplines of public safety while maintaining our focus on emergency communications.

Angela Bowen,
Joint Conference Co-Chair and Agenda Coordinator

The Georgia Emergency Communications Conference & Vendor Exhibition

September 14-17, 2009

Athens, Georgia

What is GECC?

The 2009 Georgia Emergency Communications Conference is the first installment in a collaborative effort between the Georgia Chapters of the APCO and NENA. We have entered into a memorandum of agreement for 2009 and 2010 to host a joint training conference and vendor exhibit in September of each year. Both Conferences will be held at the Classic Center in Athens, Georgia.

Who are APCO and NENA?

APCO, the Association of Public Safety Communications Officials, and NENA, the National Emergency Number Association, are the two leading professional organizations for public safety communications. With a combined membership of more than 20,000 members, both Associations strive to bring effective, efficient, and direct access to emergency services to every citizens in every part of the country by providing training, guidance, and support to Public Safety Answering Points across the country and around the world.

Who attends the Conference?

In addition to Communications personnel at all levels, we are also inviting members of the Association of County Commissioners, Municipal Association, Sheriff's Association, Police Chiefs Association, Fire Chiefs Association, and Emergency Management Association and other members of the public safety community.

Georgia Emergency Communications Conference Call for Papers

The 2009 Georgia Emergency Communications Conference (Sept. 14-17, 2009) is a networking event for public-safety communications professionals to explore the most critical issues affecting the industry. The Call for Papers invites APCO and NENA members, industry associates, business professionals and educators to submit a written presentation for development into an educational program, workshop or roundtable discussion.

How to submit your program idea

The entry should include

1. The suggested topic in which the presentation applies. The topics are as follows, and represent the core elements of our members and the critical issues currently present in the public-safety communications industry.
 - ◆ Emergency Communications First-level Operations (including law enforcement, fire, EMS, and emergency management and disaster response, the view from the field, etc.)
 - ◆ Effective Practices and National Standards
 - ◆ Training, Career and Personal Development
 - ◆ Life-Work Balance (stress management, coping with shift work, etc.)
 - ◆ Technology and Technological Topics
 - ◆ Supervisory and Management
 - ◆

Note: We welcome submissions on subjects that do not directly apply to the above topics, but that would still be relevant and educational for our attendees.

2. A biography of the presenter
3. If applicable, information about proposed co-presenters or panel members
4. A suggested title
5. A brief description of the presentation in 25 words or less.
6. The suggested learning format (classroom-style or roundtable discussion or other)
7. Three guarantees of what an attendee will learn by participating in your session
8. Date and place where program was last presented and any date and place you intend to present prior to The 2009 Georgia Emergency Communications Conference.

Evaluation

Georgia Emergency Communications Conference Committee (GECCC) will evaluate program topics based on six criteria

1. Subject timeliness
2. How thought-provoking the subject is
3. Relevance to sound management and business practice
4. Presentations defined focus
5. Practicality of presentation's application
6. Overall quality

The amount of time provided for each session is fifty (50) minutes. Please keep this in mind when developing your proposal. Submit the outline on the second page of the Call for Papers and include a description of any handouts, video/audio tapes to:

The Classic City...Athens, Georgia

Athens in the fall. There is nothing like it. This charming city, home of the University of Georgia, is one of the crown jewels of the State. As the official visitors guide, Athens is a hip town where you can “let your hair down and let your mind run free through historic southern streets pulsing with creative energy.”

Athens offers an eclectic mix of culture, from art galleries, foreign film screenings, and the State Botanical Gardens to funky boutiques and a legendary nightlife.

The sidewalks are wide and pedestrian friendly, making Athens the perfect place for a walking tour. You can even download the Athens Music Walking Tour from www.visitathensga.com. This tour will take you on a 28-stop self-guided tour around the “most significant spots in Athens’s rich musical heritage.”

Check out the great restaurants that offer everything from burgers and fries to fine dining. You can eat in the same spots that hosted legendary bands R.E.M., the B-52’s, Widespread Panic, the Indigo Girls, and others. As the birthplace of modern alternative rock and New Wave, the Athens music scene is second to none.

Of Course, no one can think of Athens without thinking of football. The University of Georgia, the first state-chartered university in the country is the administer of the famed Peabody Journalism award, home of the most successful gymnastics program in the NCAA, and the greatest place to join 93,000 of your closest friends on a Saturday afternoon. The University of Georgia is an amazing campus that offers museums and great people watching.

Is shopping a favorite pastime? The Georgia Square Mall offers over 100 specialty shops and major department stores. Downtown Athens offers unique boutiques, handmade jewelry shops, pottery and glass stores and other one-of-a-kind places.

Join us in Athens, where the motto is “Life Unleashed!”
